Th McKinley tarriff still bars the way to cheapness from A to Z, in the long list Meats of all kinds, prepared or preof fabrics, furs and finery with which the loveliest creature in the world seeks to make herself lovelier.

THE farmers of Ohio should not forget the fact that when the wool tariff went into force in 1867 there were 7,500,000 sheep in Ohio, while to-day there are less than 3,7000,000 after twenty-five years of high protection. The farmers of Ohio should ask themselves just where the benefits come in through the Republican tarifftaxation which in twenty-five years has reduced their sheep industry over one-half. They should find out why this sheep industry, which once gave large returns, scarcely pays now.

up in arms at the director of the mint for suddenly deciding that in computing the value of the Australian florin on invoices in the payment of custom duties the gold standard of value in Australia is to be taken. In other words, instead of paying duties on the besis of the Austrian florin being worth only between 32c and 33c the florin is to be reckoned as being worth 48.2c, and duty paid on that basis. This ruling, it is said, if carried out, means a loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars to the importer on this year's business-as much as $100,000 to one firm, and the possible bank-ruptcy of some of the smaller houses.

THE Jackson Herald says one of the county's largest sheep growers paid that office a call last week and complained bitterly of the new sheep law. Its operation works an injustice to the wool grower, for, if sheep were to be killed in the middle of September 1892, their owner would not receive one cent of compensation until Sept, 1892 and, if he were a poor man, would thereby suffer greatly from being deprived by law of that which was his own. Every man, whether rich or poor, if he loses sheep by dogs, loses the use of his own for a great length of time, and neither receives compensation for the loss, nor receives compensation for the loss, nor can he in any way turn that which represents his dead or damaged sheep into money until the county comintor money and c into money until the county commissioners act at their regular meeting in September. The law is a bad one in this respect, but is about on par with most of last winter's reckless strictly true and will bear the closest

Why It Is A Sham,

Republican journals profess great in-dignation because the democratic plat-form denounces their so called "reci-procity" as a sham. They point to in-creased exports of our breadstuffs and other natural products and ask farmers to consider what reciprocity has wrought. Yet it is a sham:

1. Because it claims credit for a market created by short crops abroad, when it does not apply at all to the largest taxers of our exports.

2. Because it was an afterthought and is no part of the protection schem. The Republican leaders saw that they had got to repeal or reduce some taxes or go to the wall. They chose the home tax on sugar because the home products of that article is chiefly in products of that article is chiefly in Louisiana, a Democratic state. But the Republican house, following Mc-Kinley and Reed, contemptuously waved aside Mr. Blaine's reciprocity idea, and the Tariff bill passed the House without it, free sugar and all. It was only when Mr. Blaine derounced the measure that the saving alone. ed the measure that the saving clause was added.

3. It is a sham because it untaxes foreigners on a hundred necessary ar-ticles, without abating in the least one of these taxes for our own people. The consumption of American flour and other articles has been increased in Cuba by cheapning them through a removal of the duties—just as Cuban
